CHICAGO, IL, October 22, 2012 /24-7PressRelease/ -- The Illinois nursing home attorneys at Rosenfeld Injury Lawyers have set forth to bring public awareness to the inferior care that is being allowed in some of the over 1,200 nursing homes across Illinois. On their website, www.rosenfeldinjurylawyers.com they are addressing the concerns that all Illinois citizens should have about the lack of care happening at nursing homes in our state. While some facilities are may be giving proper care to their residents, many are committing acts of gross negligence and abuse.

Inadequate Care For Nursing Home Residents In Illinois

There are over 100,000 citizens that are currently living in long-term care facilities in Illinois. Many these facilities are owned by large, for-profit corporations who have a history of putting profits in front of patient care, jeopardize the health and well being of their residents. Although state and Federal agencies regulate these facilities, more needs to be done to hold them accountable to providing the care that the people in their facilities deserve.

Illinois Department Of Health Inspections

The Illinois Department Of Health makes public the Illinois nursing homes that have disciplinary action taken on them for violations against the Nursing home Care Act. Just in the 2012 2nd quarter from April to June, 129 facilities, over 10% of the facilities state wide, had violations. Keep in mind that this was only in a three-month period and only a small percentage of the homes would have been inspected in that period.

The violations are anywhere from fairly minor to heinous. Regardless, these reports only show what the inspections find in random selections of patient files and interviews. The problem is much deeper if these violations are just the tip of the iceberg.
